

A presidential farewell

So you thought only the US President made headlines? Well, the Russian PRESIDENT VLADIMIR PUTIN, touched hearts too.

On Thursday evening, the entire staff of Hotel Oberoi's gathered in the lower foyer to see him off: from the bell boy who ushered him into the hotel to the housekeeping staff who attended to his room -- expectation writ largely on each of their faces. President Putin stepped out of the elevator and headed for the door, and then, he stopped short. Spontaneously, the entire gathering burst into applause, bidding him the perfect farewell.

"It was a great honour to meet the President of Russia. How could we go without expressing our appreciation," said MARY SOARES, the room attendant who ensured that the Kohinoor suite was spic and span for Mr Putin and LADY PUTINA. The President, touched by this gesture, stopped to pose for pictures.

Even though the Oberoi's has had loads of presidential visits by now, something tells us that each one is special in its own way.

Red Bull

Talk about bull and you think of Spain and bull fights. But this Red Bull is actually a vitaminised non-alcoholic energy drink, unique and specially formulated to effectively deal with physical and mental weariness. Well, And it tastes best when chilled! Tonight, the movers and shakers of the city will be there at the Zodiac Grill, Taj, to welcome the Bull, formally. Over 600 invitees are expected... and we only hope they don't come charging at each other at the party after tasting the energy drink. A Bull Fight is best left to the ring!
